PREFACE

Although the information contained in this report was gathered for use in an international study of the possible limited regulation of Lake Erie water levels, it may be valuable to planners, entrepreneurs, and boaters. For this reason, the Buffalo District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is making it available at the cost of reproduction. While the Corps does not possess the authority to update this inventory (because the study for which it was intended is coming to a close), I felt that the results of this one-time survey should be offered to the public while the information is still somewhat fresh. Users of this report should keep in mind the date of the document and the other qualifications that are described in the introduction.

I appreciate the efforts of the Midwest Research Institute (MRI), State representatives, and boating facilities personnel in the compiling of this report. MRI was employed as a consultant for the purpose of compiling this information and worked under supervision of the Economics Section of the Buffalo District Planning Branch. The efforts of all involved have produced a report which may help the public make better use of the great resource the Great Lakes provide.

INTRODUCTION

The Corps of Engineers, Buffalo District, under the direction of the International Joint Commission, evaluated the effects of partial regulation of Lake Erie on recreational boating and beaches. As part of the Lake Erie Regulation Study, Midwest Research Institute was contracted to administer a massive inventory of marinas and yacht clubs in the study area. The inventory of boating facilities was conducted during the summer of 1979. The data contained in this inventory should be used only as a general guide, since changes in the industry constantly occur.

This volume contains a complete listing of the facilities inventoried by Midwest Research Institute in evaluating the impacts of the lake level facilities on Lakes Erie and Ontario and connecting waterways from Massena, NY, to Port Huron, MI. The connecting waterways includes the St. Lawrence River, the Niagara River, the Detroit River, Lake St. Clair, and the St. Clair River. Although the field crews used navigation maps, aerial photos, existing recreation inventories, and drove along the shoreline, stopping periodically to ask questions about facilities, there may be smaller facilities not included in the inventory, particularly marinas with less than 10 slips. It was extremely difficult to identify the difference between a community dock (one where 3 or 4 owners built the dock for their own use) and a small facility, operated solely for the profit it generated.

Since the inventory was conducted throughout the week, field crews often times had difficulty locating a knowledgeable person to interview and obtain information about the facilities. Sometimes the information came from a nearby private facility operator, such as a service station manager. Thus, there is the possibility that small marinas have been missed in the inventory. The crews were instructed to return to a site, if information was lacking, up to three times while they were in the area. Additionally, if a telephone number was obtained, MRI staff called from our main office and attempted to contact the person in charge of the facility. Even using this procedure, we were only able to obtain partial information for a number of facilities.

This volume has been prepared for use by individuals interested in recreational boating facilities. The person might be a public agency planner or a private entrepreneur interested in facilities in a particular area. The inventory may also be used by a recreation user (i.e., a recreation boater) interested in obtaining information about facilities in a harbor/bay that he might utilize on a long distance cruise.

The facilities have been classified by waterway or lake and further segregated into reaches (Lake Erie and Ontario) to enhance the use of the inventory. Suppose an individual wishes to learn about the available facilities in an area. For example, suppose a boater is traveling from his home-port in Rochester, NY, to Alexandria Bay on the St. Lawrence River. He is interested in the type of facilities that might be available upon his arrival. He would first go to the Small Scale Location Map of Boating Facilities. He would learn that boating facilities No. 15 through 22 are located in this area. He would then simply go to the inventory and examine the size of the marinas and facilities available. If he were traveling to an area on Lake Ontario the second level map (Large Scale Location Maps for Boating Facilities) identifies the particular harbor/bays and the number of facilities in those harbors. He would then use the same procedure and assess the availability of facilities in the harbor/bay of interest. A recreation beaches inventory, a separate document, was also completed for the same study area. Large scale location maps were not required for the beaches since there were fewer, and they tended to be scattered along the shoreline, except in certain instances along Lake Erie where private beaches such as those associated with hotel beaches, etc., tended to dominate. The criteria utilized by the crews to identify a public beach are as follows:

- a. The beach must be designated as a beach for public use, including one reserved for use by a specific community;
- b. It had to have some type of sponsoring agency, individual, corporation, or entrepreneur, etc., managing the beach for public use; and
- c. There had to be some types of improvement associated with the beach (i.e., bathhouse, restroom facilities, concession stand, etc.).

Although quality control was closely maintained during the inventory, there may be additional beaches and boating facilities. If users of the inventory find questionable information, they are encouraged to call the Buffalo District Corps of Engineers, Economics Section, and notify them about possible errors.
